It shall be unlawful for any person to fail to report an animal bite or scratch that could be reasonably foreseen as capable of transmitting rabies.

6.02 The Animal Control Officer shall investigate thoroughly any report of an animal bite or scratch to an individual, or of any suspected rabid animal.

6.03 The Animal Control Officer, or any veterinarian, shall quarantine in accordance with the rules of the Texas Department of Health any animal that the Animal Control Officer or veterinarian has probable cause to believe is rabid, may have been exposed to rabies, or may have exposed an individual to rabies by bite or scratch or other means. The animal shall be quarantined at the owner's expense for observation for a period of not less than ten (10) days following a bite, scratch, or exposure constituting a risk. Pending quarantine, such animal shall be confined by the owner in a building or other secure enclosure, or securely changed to prevent escape or injury to such animal and to prevent contact with other persons or animals. Failure of an owner to so confine an animal prior to quarantine shall be unlawful.

- A. Should an animal bite or scratch the owner or a member of his immediate family, the animal may be quarantined at the home of the owner without regard to vaccination or restraint of the animal at the time of the incident if a veterinary examination of the animal reveals no reason to suspect the presence of rabies in the animal. Should there be any doubt as to the presence of rabies in the animal by the examining veterinarian, then the animal shall be kept in quarantine at a facility approved by the Animal Control Officer. The animal shall be examined by a veterinarian at the conclusion of the quarantine period.
- B. Should an animal that has been vaccinated, and is properly confined or restrained on the owner's premises, bite or scratch a person who is trespassing on the owner's property, the animal shall be quarantined only if demanded by the person bitten or scratched, who shall pay in advance all fees incident to a veterinary examination and quarantine, or if ordered by the Animal Control Officer, in which case the animal shall be quarantined at an appropriate facility at no expense to the owner.

6.04 An owner shall submit at the Animal Control Officer's request any animal that is reported to be rabid or to have exposed an individual to rabies, or the owner knows or suspects is rabid or has exposed an individual to rabies. Failure of an owner or person in control of a suspect animal to submit such animal to the Animal Control Officer or a veterinarian as requested shall be unlawful.

6.05 If a veterinarian determines that a quarantined animal does not show the clinical signs of rabies, the veterinarian or Animal Control Officer shall release the animal to its owner at the expiration of the quarantine period if the owner has an unexpired rabies vaccination certificate of the animal, or the animal is vaccinated against rabies at the owner's expense.

6.06 If a veterinarian determines that a quarantined animal shows the clinical signs of rabies, the veterinarian or Animal Control Officer shall immediately and humanely destroy the animal. If the animal dies or is destroyed while in quarantine, the head or brain of the animal shall be removed and submitted to a Texas Department of Health laboratory for testing.

6.07 The owner of an animal quarantined under this order or state law shall be responsible for paying the veterinarian and/or Animal Control Officer all reasonable costs of the quarantine and disposition of the animal. In the event that an owner fails to redeem the quarantined animal within four (4) days following expiration of the quarantine period, the veterinarian or Animal Control Officer may sell the animal or keep or humanely destroy the animal.

6.08 If the owner of a quarantined animal is unknown, the animal shall be considered a stray and handled in accordance with this order.

6.09 Should any owner fail or refuse to comply with the provisions of this section, a justice court may, upon a finding of probable cause based on the affidavit of a credible person showing that the animal in question bit or scratched an individual, or is reasonably believed to have rabies or to have been exposed to rabies, issue an order to the Animal Control Officer or any peace officer directing that any suspect animal be seized and impounded for quarantine observation in accordance with this order. The expense of such quarantine shall be paid by the owner.
